Who Needs Gold?

Primrose Seed Is Trading at $285 an Ounce

By FRANK LaPIERRE

With the world price of gold about $146 per ounce, and the asking price for an ounce of primrose seed running $285, there are those who think the world should get off the gold standard and get on the primrose path.

Primrose seed is a fine powdery substance that needs special knowhow to handle.

For more than 25 years, Ray and August "Moe" Masini, owners of Masini Brothers Nursery, have been growing primroses — millions of them — in Colma.

"We want to emphasize that our primroses are giant field-grown hybrids sold only to wholesalers," Ray Masini explained.

He said some primroses grow in pots and suffer root damage in the process.

The Masinis have some 25 acres of land carpeted with the colorful plants in the San Bruno Mountain foothills.

Over one-million plants are grown in the rich fertile soil of the Masini nursery annually, making it the largest primrose field in the nation.

Apparently the weather in the North County agrees with the hardy primrose plants; they bloom almost year-around.

The brothers have 16 separate primrose "colors." They boast that four of the colors are "our very own hybrids."

In a huge 300-foot by 80-foot shed, some 2,500 "mother" plants are carefully attended by employes.

These plants are cross pollinated by hand — switching pollen from a "female" plant to a "male" plant, much the same as bees work.

The Masinis become close-mouthed when asked how they mix their colors and cross-pollinate the plants.

"If we told everything it took us 25 years to learn, we'd be out of business in a year," Ray Masini says.

Even with all the secrecy, the nursery, like others throughout the Bay Area, has been hit hard by the current state of inflation — down some 20 per cent from previous years.

"We're no different than any other business operating today. The down trend in business is affecting us like it has others," Ray explains.

For the first time in their 25-year history, the brothers have decided to offset the slump by placing some of their seed stock on the market.

The Masinis said a San Francisco firm soon would start selling the seeds on the retail market.

Orders for the seeds are expected to pour in from throughout the country.

Primroses, which have caught on in recent years around the world, have been in growing demand from fanciers as far away as Geneva, New York and Hawaii, Masini said.

Principal markets, however, are between Los Angeles, Seattle and Reno, Nevada, Masini said.

a single primrose will produce blooms for about five years if properly cared for, Moe Masini said. After three years, a

Council Hit for Mountain Posture

The Daly City Council listened without comment Monday as a representative of a group calling itself the "Daly City Chapter—Save San Bruno Mountain" lambasted them for their posture on development of the mountain.

Del Schembari, who earlier submitted a petition containing six names (five of the names are "Schembari"), said the problem of any development on the mountain is of a regional nature and he did not think Daly City was "concerned enough."

He alleged Daly City asked that plans for the mountain development be approved before the Environmental Impact Report was approved.

And he charged that Robert Follett, of Visitacion Associates, was using a "deceptive public relations campaign" in explaining open space and development areas of the mountain.

Was Schembari referring to the whole mountain when he asked that it be bought and set aside as open space, Councilman Tony Giammona asked.

"Yes," Schembari answered.

Rather than dispute the charges during the regular meeting, Mayor McRobert Stewart, with apparent approval of fellow councilmen, informed Schembari "all your questions will be answered" in a letter.

Stewart said later, he would answer those allegations made against the city, but would not concern himself with charges Schembari made against Follett.

Schembari's group wants the Daly City Council to ask the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) to review the mountain development.

"As a group, we are concerned with the impact of the proposed development on taxes, population density, sewage, water needs and traffic congestion," Schembari said.

Whatever happens on the mountain should be based on criteria set forth by surrounding cities, Stewart said

Councilman William Schumacher said he did not think the size of the mountain park was adequate "considering the number of people to be on the mountain (perhaps 23,000)."

But Schumacher said it was not financially feasible for the entire mountain to be purchased, inasmuch as "I don't know where the money would come from."

Stewart, a member of the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), said it was the function of that agency to arrive at a solution.

Open swimming was declared Sunday following formal dedication of Westmoor High School's indoor swimming pool. The new olympic-sized facility was constructed under a joint powers agreement between the city of Daly City and the Jefferson Union High School District. The pool will be used for the regular school physical education program and interschool competition. The city Recreation Department also will offer an open swimming schedule. For more pool dedication photos see Page 20.

Vial Kin Hurt in Accident

Jane McClay, daughter of Daly City Chamber of Commerce president Al Vial, was reported in fair condition today at Chope Community Hospital with severe injuries to her right leg.

Mrs. McClay, 22, of 1009 Norton Ave., San Mateo, suffered the injuries when the compact van she was riding in with her husband, Terry, collided headon with a car on Highway 92 on Feb. 28 about 6:15 p.m.

The McClay's were travelling to Half Moon Bay to celebrate the husband's birthday when a car driven by Harris D. Wilson, 38, of Moss Beach, collided with the McClay's car headon about a mile from their destination.

Jane McClay was first placed in the intensive care unit at Chope suffering from compound fractures to the right leg, and ankle and head injuries.

Her husband, Terry, was taken to Moss Beach Rehabilitation Hospital after the accident and later transferred to Kaiser Hospital in Redwood City.

He suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg and lacerations to his chin and right arm, along with multiple abrasions of the chest and shoulder.

New Consultant May Be Hired

The special citizens committee now busy screening applicants for the job of consultant to the Daly City Redevelopment Agency might have the added task of selecting a consultant for the city's revised general plan outline.

At least one councilman — William Schumacher — wants to know if it is feasible to combine the jobs of consulting engineer for the redevelopment master plan, and the city's general plan revision.

Schumacher asked how the redevelopment agency consultant "can make an intelligent plan" without knowning about the contents of general plan.

Mayor McRobert Stewart answered that the general plan is merely an outline for the city. He said certain information must be interrelated in both, but they are not the same.

The city's last general plan was adopted some eight years ago and cost $105,000 to complete.

A city, to qualify for certain government funds, must have an acceptable master plan.

In recent years, according to City Manager David Rowe, new concerns have arisen that must be included in any general plan revision, including noise, seismic and pollution matters.

Schumacher asked how much money would be spent on the two studies.

Rowe said the redevelopment plan would be more exacting than the general plan.

"I don't see any cost savings by using the same (consulting) firm," Rowe said.

Rowe said costs of the two project consultants could run between $30,000 and $70,000 for the general plan, and from $30,000 to $50,000 for the redevelopment plan.

Rowe said it is possible the same planning consultant could do both jobs.

Councilman Paul Hupf wanted to know if the city had any choice in updating the general plan.

Rowe said state law mandated the general plan be kept current, to which Hupf replied: "If we've got to do it, we've got to do it."

The citizens committee of the Project Area Committee which has been screening applications for the Redevelopment Agency already has done a "great deal of work," Councilman Victor Kyriakis noted.

"I wonder if we have to again send out requests to prospects (if it is decided to use the same consultant)?," Kyriakis asked.

Kyriakis said he was not sure he would take any action that would impede progress already made in selection of a consultant for the redevelopment plan.

Woman Rescued From DC Cliff

A combined rescue team of Daly City police and firemen plucked a woman and her 140 pound St. Bernard canine companion off a precarious ledge some 400 feet above the Pacific Ocean Sunday.

Diana Ritter, 26, of Kentfield, had been stranded on the small rock ledge for almost two hours before rescuers gingerly picked their way down the cliff to her side about 4:30 p.m.

The woman was visiting friends at 99 Seaview Drive, Daly City, when she apparently decided to climb down to the ocean shore, some 800 feet below the cliff top.

Halfway down, the woman and her dog, Jake, became stranded.

A passerby noticed the plight of the woman and told a ranger on duty at nearby Thornton Beach State Park.

He, in turn, called police.

The cliff where the woman was trapped is the steepest section along the entire Daly City ocean side.

Firemen Jay Modglin and Larry Benson, aided by policemen Pete Salvi and Warren Keith lowered themselves by ropes to the ledge.

The official report noted the woman was unhurt "and the dog unfazed by it all."

Lycett Left No Will

Bernard J. (Bud) Lycett, former councilman and mayor of Daly City, died intestate Feb. 1, according to a petition for letters of administration of his estate filed Friday in Superior Court by his widow, Edna Lycett.

The petition states that Lycett, who was 59, left personal property valued at $20,000 and income of $1,100 annually from personal property.

It lists his heirs as his widow, a son, Edward, of Burlingame, and a daughter, Susan Schellenberg, of San Carlos.

Lycett was appointed to the Daly City Council in 1964.

Council Approves Sign Ordinance

Daly City has a new sign ordinance designed to spruce up the appearance of commercial areas in coming years.

After some two years of debate and numerous meetings between merchant groups and government officials, the law passed Monday in a split 3-1 vote, with one abstention.

Councilman Paul Hupf, an attorney representing outdoor advertiser Foster-Kleiser Company, abstained from voting in the matter, as he has done in the past.

Councilman William Schumacher voted against the law without comment.

He has voiced dissatisfaction with political sign sections of the law in the past.

In other action, the council gave unanimous voice support to the Daly City-Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) parking garage agreement.

The agreement says in effect that BART may charge a reasonable fee for parking at the proposed multi-million-dollar garage facility to be built with city-federal funds west of the terminus station.

The agreement was hammered out in a series of meetings between BART directors and Councilmen Victor Kyriakis and William Schumacher over the past month.

The city is expected to seek a traffic engineer soon, City Manager David Rowe said.

Brisbane Planning Marina-Apartment Complex

Brisbane is planning to build a marina on its bay shoreline that officials say will be both pleasing to the eyes and easy on the pocketbooks of its residents.

While the matter still is under intense negotiations, the council and city staff unanimously have voiced support for the 113 acre, multi-million dollar marina-apartment-shopping center complex, it was understood.

The area is the former dumping ground for San Francisco's 1800 tons of daily garbage, and was the scene of bitter confrontations between the city and scavenger company Sunset Scavenger Company about eight years ago. Dumping stopped five years ago.

Now, the scavenger company, owner of the property, wants to sell the land to Los Angeles developer Byron Lasky for development of the recreational facility.

Lasky would probably lease the site back to Brisbane, which could, as an umbrella agency for the project, lease it all or part of the land back to Lasky.

It is expected with this lease arrangement, certain government funds would become available for financing construction and planning of the marina.

Exact costs of the development are not known at this time, according to City Manager Clark Smithson.

Smithson said a mile-long linear park alongside the Bayshore Freeway — with controlled access, fishing areas, walkways and bicycle paths — between Sierra Point (site of the marina) and Candlestick Park area, also is being considered.

The marina would have slips for 350 private boats, 50 commercial boats, and include 300 apartments, 50 houseboats, three restaurants, campgrounds, a movie theater, retail shops and boat-related enterprises.

Smithson called the project "a new, innovative, inventive, cooperative effort between a developer and a city."

On most projects, Smithson related, the developer and site planners huddle in a corner and when they have drafted their plans they bring the package before the City Council.

"The city then takes a few cracks at the plan and, after all the modifications and amendments are made, end up with a plan barely acceptable to the city and developer," Smithson said.

However, in the marina development the city will have its finger in the pudding right from the start, Smithson said.

"We will use the same

primrose can be dug up, the roots split, and replanted, he said.

Asked why the nursery still prefers to hand-pollinate, Ray replied:

"We tried bees years ago. But they are more trouble than they're worth. For one thing, you can't control the colors with bees," Ray said.

The beautiful five-lobed flower, which now is being discovered by home gardeners, was first described by Shakespeare in "Hamlet."

A prettier path there never has been. Ask the Masini brothers.

Incumbents Re-Elected

Beverly Forrester and Alvin Schwarzbach were re-elected to trustee seats on thjle Jefferson Elementary School District governing board at the March 4 election.

Forrester garnered 1765 votes and Schwarzbach 1850 votes. The only other candidate, Michael Furtch got 786 votes.

The Bayshore Elementary School District in Daly City returned two incumbents to the board of trustees in one of the lightest voter turnouts in years — about 25 percent of the registered voters.

Ferdinand G. King and Mildred Pleskach were returned to office, however, a tax limit increase proposition failed 144 votes to 64.

Of the three candidates Mrs. Pleskach topped the list with 147 votes, King was second with 132 and challenger Lynn Sieber trailed with 97.

Lot Split Wins Nod Of Pacifica Council

The Pacifica City Council Monday night again overruled the planning commission on a year-long attempt by Sharp Park resident George LeBus of Loma Vista Terrace to split his lot and build a house on it.

Both staff and the planning commission have opposed the application, but appeals from LeBus, who fought one technicality after another, gained reversals.

The councilmen approved the request, 3-2. Janice Fulford and Grace McCarthy, who live in the area, opposed it. However, LeBus must submit the plans for his new home to the planning commission for approval before a building permit may be issued.

"By building an attractive, landscaped home on this lot, I can enhance the area and give Sharp Park a little more class," LeBus said.

"The housing mix diversity will be increased by addition of an 1,800 square-foot house on a spacious lot in an area of small lots and small homes," he said.

LeBus also must pay an in-lieu fee of $1,748 to the park fund.

By buying the back of two oversized lots facing Talbot, adding the land to his lot, then dividing his lot in two, LeBus created a new lot of 20,684 square feet. The lot on which his home is located became 12,000 square feet. Under city ordinances governing hillside lots, his home lot is now at its minimum size, but the new lot is too small, because of its extreme steepness. He thus needed a "modification," which the council granted Monday.

Friends Celebrate Election of Mayor

Stanley Farber, 41, a Pacifica councilman for five years, was unanimously selected mayor Monday night.

Janice Fulford, a conservationist elected last year, is now vice mayor.

Farber was nominated by Mrs. Fulford and seconded by Sid Lorvan, Mrs. Fulford, in turn, was nominated by Councilwoman Grace McCarthy and was seconded by both Mrs. Fulford and Aubrey Lumley. Lumley retired after two years as mayor.

Mrs. McCarthy said Farber, a pharmacist, had rearranged his working hours so he could devote sufficient time to the position and that he had taken a special training course for mayors given by the League of California Cities.

Farber reportedly had sought the office in the past, losing out to Mrs. McCarthy, who served three terms. Last year, he reportedly could have had the office after his triumphant victory at the polls, but he had just been married and wanted to devote time to his newly enlarged family

Farber came to Pacifica in 1962 and opened a pharmacy in Eureka Square.

He served on the Laguna Board, then ran for city council in 1970.

His wife died suddenly 2½ years ago, leaving him with two daughters. Last year, he remarried — and now has four children, 11 to 17 years of age.

The change of seats was marked with an exchange of commendations and gifts. Lumley was presented with a ball bat wrapped up in barbed wire, as Farber reported that City Manager Don Weidner had asked him last week if "Lumley had a sense of humor."

Farber introduced his wife, four children and parents — all visiting a council meeting for the first time. A recess was declared as a large sheet cake — dedicated to both Lumley and Farber was served to the capacity audience.

As he concluded his first meeting, Farber said he would try two new approaches at meetings. When an item comes up on the agenda, "a motion must be made and seconded. He said, "Sometimes we discuss things for a half-an-hour before we find we weren't interested in voting on it after all."

He also asked that motions be made in a positive wording so that "a yes vote means yes, and a no vote means no."

planners to put this together and will have citizen input every step of the way on the project," he said.

This method will insure plans have a better chance to be accepted by the people and city government, Smithson said.

Total cost of the feasibility study was $10,000 — with the Sunset Scavenger Company paying $8,000 and Brisbane the remainder, it was learned.

After it is built, the city's net profit per year is estimated at almost a quarter of a million dollars, according to the report.

Project Funds for Minorities Reviewed

Coping with the manpower requirements of the federally-funded minorities program under the Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) has been a frustrating strain for the Jefferson Elementary School District in Daly City-Colma.

In a 3½-hour long meeting Thursday, the board of trustees and administrators reviewed some of the problems.

The meeting was continued from Wednesday after trustees discovered up to a month's delay between the hiring of instructional aides and other ESAA personnel and the requests for board ratification.

Concern over the number of 90-day provisional employes being hired since the program was launched at the beginning of this school term on a one-year $774,000 U.S. grant also was expressed.

Under the ESAA, the program has a three-fold purpose:

- Assist the district in meeting special needs incident to the elimination of minority group segregation and discrimination among student and faculty. . .
- "Eliminate, reduce or prevent minority group isolation, with substantial proportions of minority group students. . . .
- Aid school children in overcoming the educational disadvantages of minority group isolation.

Special programs in reading, mathematics, counseling, curriculum development and multi-cultural experiences for children are included in the program in 10 schools in the Jefferson district, plus three area parochial schools.

It is the same program which has prompted demands for an investigation over a district application for funds which allegedly was revised without trustee authorization or knowledge.

Despite the problems, trustees and administrators Wednesday generally expressed satisfaction with the program.

Hemington said a first-quarter evaluation from the federal agencies was favorable. A second "monitoring" is scheduled for March 11-12.

According to Dr. Robert Hughley, the ESAA grant director, the district has received $300,000 of the total sum. He said two-fifths of the overall grant has been spent.

Trustees and administrators expressed concern that an ESAA bookkeeper's position went unfilled for some five months.

This put an additional workload on existing business office personnel, which attempted on weekends to maintain ESAA books, according to John Lynch, the district's business manager.

As a result, the business office was unable to keep up with all of its own functions, and some bills went unpaid for an unusually long time, it was learned.

Provisional personnel are being used because of the time it takes to establish eligibility lists, the lack of applicants and the turnover, said Bill Young of the district's classified personnel department.

Young said the process of establishing lists, testing and hiring of personnel in the district takes up to eight weeks.

Dr. Hughley said he had been concerned with the "inordinate" amount of time required to fill positions. Trustees also used strong terms to express their criticism.

Young said short-term aspects of the employment probably was a factor, along with working conditions and salary.

Young said he office was geared to handle an annual turnover of some 12 to 15 persons, and that the number this year already had reached 112.

Although there have been numerous revisions in the program since Dr. Hughley became director last August, none have been approved by the federal agencies.

In fact one Office of Education official failed to keep several appointments, Dr. Hughley said.

JESD Faces Big Deficit

The business manager of the Jefferson Elementary School District predicts a deficit of at least $1 million by 1977-78 if current trends continue.

John Lynch, in presenting trustees with a post-preliminary budget preview Wednesday night, said the board "must be prepared to make cutbacks in programs that have taken years to build."

He did not elaborate, however.

Lynch said declining enrollment, double digit inflation and a fixed revenue base have placed the school district "on the brink of financial disaster."

He recommended there be an undistributed reserve of no less than $300,000. To do that, however, the district must trim the preliminary budget of $10,810,462 by at least $150,000.

Reviewing the district's declining enrollment, Lynch explained that as enrollment rises or falls, so does revenue.

He said the average daily attendance in 1970-71 was 9,503. By 1972 it had dropped by 495 students, and the estimated 1975-76 enrollment is 8,000, a 4.19 per cent decline.

The district last year could spend $980.96 for each of its 8,650 pupils, Lynch said.

"This year, it was allowed $1,016.83 or $35.87 more for each student, but enrollment dropped by 300 students," according to Lynch.

Next year, he said, the revenue base will increase by $40.57 per student — to $1,057.40 — but enrollment again is expected to decline, by some 350 pupils.

Lynch said the ADA by 1977-78 will have declined 1,608 since 1972, or 17.85 per cent.

"On the basis of this trend, my conservative estimate is that by 1977-78 we will have a deficit of at least $1-million," Lynch said.

Lynch noted another "additional complicating" factor is built into SB 90, the legislation which tied revenue to ADA. SB 90 is "not realistic, because the costs of doing business, both public and private, in some instances have increased by as much as 300 per cent," he said.

Even an election to obtain voter approval of a tax increase would be "merely a temporary remedy," Lynch said. What is required, he said, are changes in the school finance laws.

Along those lines, Trustee Alvin Schwarzbach, who won re-election along with Mrs. Beverly Forrester March 4, suggested formation of a citizens' advisory committee to initiate a campaign to pressure state legislators into revising their thinking on school finance.

Ammunition Explodes In Daly City Fire

A fire, believed to be set by a burglar trying to cover his crime, roared through a Daly City home Sunday causing an estimated $25,000 damages.

Ammunition set off by the blaze exploded while firemen battled the fire.

Battalion Chief Wayne Alexander said the bullet whistled past Verducci's head, hitting his firefighting helmet instead.

Ronald W. Smith, occupant of the home at 468 Santa Barbara, told police after the fire had been extinguished that a 30-06 rifle and some ammunition had been stolen.

A shotgun and more ammunition was left behind, police said.

Investigators said they noticed the rear door of the home had been forced open when they arrived on the scene about 8:30 p.m.

Smith had left the house about 6:30 p.m.

Supervisors Asked to Aid Assessor

Members of the North San Mateo County Council of Cities, meeting in Pacifica Thursday night, questioned County Assessor Jack Estes then adopted a resolution urging the board of supervisors to hire enough staff to assure an equitable assessment policy for all categories of property.

The councilmen did not have to go far to deliver their resolution. Three of the five supervisors — William Royer, John Ward and Jean Fassler — were in attendance. Royer even had a reply to the resolution. He told the group that the board of supervisors has already begun work on the council's request.

The council turned down a verbal request by San Bruno Councilman Dick Griffith, who had asked for a moratorium on reassessment of all single-family property until the county completes reassessing all apartments, industries and other business properties.

"It would be illegal," said Royer. "State law says that all property must be assessed at 25 per cent of market value."

Royer said that under Estes' program, all commercial and industrial property will be reassessed or reviewed by the end of next year. After that, the data will go into a computer so that all properties can be regularly updated.

The assessment problem was brought up by San Bruno Mayor Tony Governale. In the last five years, he said, single family residences have been reassessed three, four and five years in a row, while businesses "have not shared in the same glory."

"We reappraise where the need is greatest," Estes replied.

In 1969, Estes said, he found he could not handle the workload with his limited manpower, so decided to go into a computer assisted program. He contracted with General Electric for the software and is now on a two-phase program. The first phase, the assessment of single family homes, is 55 per cent complete, while the second phase, the apartments, will be completed this year.

"This is the stage where we got clobbered," Estes said.

He added that "we never reassess every year unless there is a structural change in the building."

Griffith asked Estes why he failed to reassess a five-acre site in San Bruno's Portola Highlands which had been assessed for one home — and on which 10 homes were built. Pacifica Councilman Stan Farber asked why beach frontage owned by Occidental Petroleum, had not been reassessed. Estes was unable to give definite answers on specific properties since he said he had not worked on them personally.

"If we came to you from Hillsborough," Farber said, "with a high-powered ... lawyer, we'd have your men running helter skelter."

Estes invited him into his office to check any of his records.

Royer assured Farber that Estes practiced no favoritism.

Also discussed was the possibility of "escape assessments," collecting for past under-assessments. Royer said the district attorney's office had ruled the county could not legally do it, but said he was seeking the attorney general's opinion to make sure.

Supervisor John Ward said he had been making a study of assessment practices.

The board will interview a property assessment expert Monday with the possibility of hiring him for a survey of local practices. The board also may hire an assessment officer of its own, to aid those protesting assessments, Ward said.

The resolution stated that the county assessor has admitted his inability to reasses industrial, commercial, multi-family and undeveloped property more frequently than five or six years, while reassessing single family homes as frequently as every year.

The councilmen asked for more staff for the assessor, so that his office can examine all classes of property with the same regularity, and so that the assessor can levy "escape assessments" to recover taxes lost over the past four years.

They also asked the county to hire independent auditors to check assessments.

Former Police Officer Arthur Linhares Dies

Retired Daly City Police Officer Arthur G. Linhares died of cancer Sunday following a two-year illness. He was 63.

Known for his sense of humor, he was an avid golfer and worked for the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club until his death.

Linhares retired in 1967 after 20 years with the department.

He was the first police officer hired in Daly City under the Civil Service examination procedure.

His ability to deal with people in all walks of life brought him numerous letters of appreciation, according to Police Chief David Hansen.

Most of the letters contained the phrase, "never been treated more courteously," his superiors explained.

Linhares was a native of California and a veteran of World War II. He was also a member of the Peninsula Police Officers Association.

Survivors include his wife, Edith and brothers, William, Milton, Clifford and Kenneth Linhares.

Funeral services were held Tuesday from Lasswell and Company Mortuary, 6154 Mission St., thence to Mater Dolorosa Church, 307 Willow Ave., South San Francisco.

Burial was in Golden Gate National Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dr. Ernest Rosenbaum Cancer Research Foundation, Mt. Zion Hospital.

Board Denies Appeal Of Employe Firing

The South San Francisco Personnel Board has left stand the firing of Assistant Planner Surendra Amin during last Christmas season, according to David Haughey, personnel officer.

The board met early last week to consider Amin's appeal. A full-scale hearing previously had been held when Amin asserted that his professional competence had never come into question until the appointment of David Hale as city planner. Both Hale, and his department head, Public Service Director Frank Addiego, had alleged that Amin had failed to keep up with his work.

Amin, however, had asked for another meeting to reply to the charges of his two superiors. The board studied an eight-page reply by Amin March 3, and decided that it contained no new information, according to Haughey, and that it had no basis for any further recommendation.

The board voted to start procedures for hiring a new assistant planner.

Should Amin wish to pursue his fight for his job, he will have to go to court. He has retained an attorney.

Although Amin worked in the planning office for more than two years, he had not civil service rights. For most of his South San Francisco stint, he was employed under an Office of Emergency Employment program. He was fired shortly before his one-year probationary period, as a regular city employe, was to end.

The personnel board said it considered Amin's appeal because Amin who is from Indiana, charged racial discrimination. Hale vigorously denied the charge. The board reported there was no conclusive evidence that racial discrimination existed.

Pacifica Chamber Manager Paul Sutterly Resigns

Paul Sutterly said Wednesday he is leaving his post as manager of the Pacifica Chamber of Commerce April 1.

He was hired last August under a new program which the chamber hoped would bring about a broadening of the city tax-base, which now depends almost wholly upon residential uses.

Sutterly, who has been employed on a month-to-month basis, will now return to his own business, Chang Partnership of Berkeley, a community development consulting firm. He stressed that he was leaving in the "best of fellowship and the best of understanding."

"We'll come out with what is best for Pacifica," he said.

He predicted more emphasis will be placed on the internal development of the community rather than working from the outside.

Under his management, and working with chamber president Nick Gust and his board, the chamber has spurred the city to initiate a launching ramp study for Pacifica. The chamber also has begun study on a series of imaginative projects.

The most ambitious project has been discussion of building a cultural center of the Pacific basin, which might also be used for a civic center. Pacific nations would have permanent exhibit — both commercial and cultural — at this center, in buildings of their own design.

Sutterly admits, however, that this is a somewhat ambitious project for Pacifica to undertake. Although at least one countywide association has shown an interest in the project, the San Mateo County Development Association.

More imminent is creation of an overnight Recreational Vehicle Park near the beach in Pacifica. The park would be virtually the only such park in the Bay Area, where owners of mobile homes could park overnight while visiting San Francisco. Negotiations are in progress on this project.

The chamber also is investigating the possibility of creating a 40-acre "Oriental cemetery". In addition to gravesites, such an installation would include picnic tables, barbecues and play areas, where families would gather for reunions and other celebrations.

Young Persons Arrested

Unruliness at Beach Reported

Police Chief Mel Nelson has expressed concern over unruliness of some young people on Pacifica's San Pedro Beach.

Arrests following threats against police officers, on two successive Friday nights, on Pacifica's San Pedro Beach, have pointed up a growing problem in Pacifica.

Recently, an 18-year-old youth, Scott E. Jocoy, 1089 Crespi Drive, was charged with assault on a peace officer, and failure to disperse. He allegedly argued with Police Det. Gerald J. Grochowski and Officer Walter Majka, poking Grochowski in the chest, and trying to arouse a "loud milling" crowd of around 75 juveniles and young adults to violence against the officers.

Earlier three persons were arrested when police tried to quell a crowd of 150 to 175 young persons. Arrested were Raymond Burnfield, 18, 21 Alviso Court; Gregory Youngman, 18, 804 Terra Nova Blvd., and William Ogle, 22, 1272 Glacier Ave.

In each instance, officers had been trying to get the crowds to disperse, and for the children in the crowd to go home, according to police officials, succeeding, they said, only after having to endure threats and severe insults.

Police Chief Mel Nelson said last week, boys and girls — 12 and 13 years old — have been taking part in the Friday night beer busts, with youths up to 24 years of age evidently supplying some beverages. Some youths apparently were smoking marijuana, Nelson charged.

Nelson said, "We want people to use our beaches. That is one of the reasons that we all live here."

And he said officers do not bother groups gathered on the beach until they receive complaints.

There have been reports that youths have harassed persons walking their dogs on the beaches and tossing and smashing bottles on the parking lot and the Coast Highway.

Nelson said the young people are defying the police to stop them.

"The beach is there for everyone," he said. "Our main concern is that any one who wants to use the beaches is not unduly disturbed."

He promised also to protect the rights of young beach-users who may be harassed by older picnickers — as happened at times.

One of Nelson's chief concerns after 10:30 p.m. is that youngsters on the beach are violating not only the curfew law, but alcohol and marijuana regulations, as well.

"We're going to start taking names," he said, "and calling up the parents for them to come get their children," the chief said. "We're going to place some responsibility on the parents."

So far, he said, there seem to be only a few troublemakers among the youths who use the beaches, and police officers are keeping the situation under control.

Hesters and Tretten Win In LSSD

Although incumbent Grady Hesters managed to keep his seat on the Laguna Salada School Board, March 4, he came in second to Rudie Tretten, supervisor of student teachers at San Francisco State University. Tretten led with 1,251 votes, followed by Hesters' 1,118 votes.

Five persons were running for two seats. Hesters had been appointed to the board in October, thus was running for the first time. Just three weeks before the election, he was fired as manager of the local cable television station's Studio 70.

Tretten is chairman of the San Mateo County Mental Health Advisory Board and vice president of the Pacifica Democrats. He serves as consultant on special projects for several districts.

Other votes: Richard Scott, 837; Robert M. Derenzi, 661, and Cheryl L. Sharp, 652. Tretten will take office on April 1, under new legislation cutting down on time served by "lame duck" trustees.

Local Real Estate Agents To Attend State Seminar

Ten members of the San Mateo-Burlingame Board of Realtors will attend the annual legislative day and March meeting of the board of directors of the California Association of Realtors.

Announcement was made by Jane Powell, president of the local board, who will be in attendance at the two events in Sacramento.

Legislative day will be today at the Senator Hotel, while the March meeting will be at various hotels in Sacramento. The events bring together the presidents and executive officers of 174 boards of Realtors and committees involved in legislative programs.

In addition to individual meetings with San Mateo County's legislators, including Sen. George Moscone, Sen. Arlen Gregorio, Assemblymen Dixon Arnett and Louis Papan, the entire state legislature will be guests at a luncheon, Ms. Powell announced.

Richard C. Farrer, Hayward, president of the California Association of Realtors, said that specific legislation to be discussed includes continuing upgrading of education requirements for real estate licenses, financing, land use and environmental matters.

Members of the San Mateo-Burlingame Board, in addition to President Powell, who will attend are:

Robert Cahen, vice-president and chairman of Multiple Listing Service; Clay Duncan, treasurer and membership chairman, Mel Dalmau, director; James Hollinger, director; Jean Cockcroft, education chairman; Andrew L. Leavitt, legislative chairman; Neil Strain, vice-president, San Mateo County Realtors and Ruth Nichols, executive vice-president, San Mateo-Burlingame Board of Realtors.

Papan Moves

Assemblyman Louis Papan, (Daly City) has moved his district office to Suite 345 E. Serramonte Plaza, Daly City. The telephone number is 756-6400.

OLPH School Plans Reunion

Our Lady of Perpetual Help Mothers Club will host the next celebration in line with the Parish Jubilee Year April 5.

The event will be a reunion of all students of the school since its inception in 1939, its religious and lay faculty, graduates who entered the convent/seminary, and well as CCD students and instructors. The celebration will start with a concelebrated mass headed by Rev. John Mullen, Pastor, Rev. Tom McElligott, Rev. Joseph Gordon, Rev. Robert Johnson, and others, at 4 p.m.

A Dinner-Dance will follow the mass at the school hall at a cost of $3.50 per person.

According to Sister Madaleva, school principal, many nuns, who taught in the school through the years, are planning to come up from their Mother House in Orange to meet with their former students.

All graduates, their husbands and families are invited to attend this reunion. Reservations may be made with Our Lady of Perpetual Help Rector, 755-9786.

Due to difficulty in reaching all the graduates, it is hoped that those living within the Bay Area may pass on the news of the reunion to fellow graduates.

Rev. John Mullen, pastor; Sister Madaleva, school principal; Parish Jubilee co-chairpersons, Mrs. Richard Morales, and Mr. Robert Gross; and Mrs. Thomas Baldwin, OLPH Mothers Club president, extend a invitation to those who have studied at Our Lady of Perpetual Help School along with all teachers, as well as to those who have worked with the school in one way or another through the years.

Lovanne Heath

Happy birthday to the Girl Scouts! Today marks the sixty-third anniversary of the founding of the organization in the United States.

The girls have been celebrating the event since Sunday, when a delightful ecumenical service in the Little Theater at Serramonte High School climaxed a day filled with activities.

Next Wednesday at 4 p.m. the Cadettes of Troop 1620, lead by the popular day camp director Mrs. Carole Ann Scott, will treat all other local Cadette troops to an introduction to both the Daly City and Colma City and Town governments. Troops will meet at the Daly City City Hall for the one hour program.

THERE IS STILL TIME to arrange for reservations to the "Ceili" being sponsored by the Westlake Festival Committee at our Lady of Mercy parish.

The St. Patrick's dance and buffet, will be held Friday in the parish hall with lots of good, hot food, the lively music of Rich Landi and his group, and special entertainment provided by the Irish dance students of three leading schools of Irish dancing, the Murphy, the Healy and the Keneally studios in San Francisco.

Mrs. Francis Kelly, co-chairwoman, and Mrs. Donald Bechtel, reservations chair-woman, will accept orders for tickets costing $7.50 per couple.

Call 756-5266, for more information.

AFTER ALL THAT DANCING, should you still be in the mood for more good music and should you have a yen to see a Bay Area group attempt to set a new world's record, bounce on over to Lowell High School on the San Francisco end of Lake Merced Boulevard and see and hear the members of the Lowell High School Symphonic band attempt to set a world's record for the longest Band Marathon Concert.

The concert will begin at 6 a.m. with the kids aiming for 30 straight hours of music. The current record in the Guinness Book of World Records is 27 hours and 10 minutes.

Radio and television persoanlities as well as local community leaders have promised to follow the example of the San Francisco Symphony's Nicholas Wyss and take turns on the podium conducting the determined young musicians.

The objective of the grueling undertaking is to raise money for a two-week concert tour of Great Britain in June. The tour will be totally financed by the members of the band and their parents so the program is definitely a benefit and donations will be accepted and refreshments sold. For more information call 566-0966.

THE SECOND in a continuing series of bi-centennial displays arrives at the Serramonte Shopping Center this morning. The exhibit entitled Industrial Heritage of the U.S.A. will feature early examples of machinery and implements manufactured in the United States.

More than 25 separate displays will dot the shopping center mall everyday through Sunday.

WOMEN'S AWARENESS Workshops and Men's Awareness Groups are being organized by Sister Joan Murphy and Jack Gilligan as a part of the mini-course series being conducted by St. Andrew's Congregation.

The women's workshops will be limited to 10 women and the men's groups will be limited to 8 men. Dates and times will be arranged to fit the schedules of those interested in taking part. For more information call 992-4577 or 756-3330.

MARCH 23 is the date for the Prune Festival in Healdsburg, and the members of the Fifty-Plus Club in Pacifica are chartering a bus to transport as many as 40 localites north for the event.

Persons making the trip will be the guests of the Healdsburg Chamber of Commerce at the Chateau Chanticleer, a lovely picnic site in the heart of the flowering orchards. A tour of an historic church and a stop at the winery at Asti are included on the day's itinerary.

Reservations, costing $7.50 per person are available from Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg. Call 355-2184 for more information.

Sabbath services will continue on Saturday, March 15th at 10 a.m. To be read: Parsha (Biblical Chapter) "Vayikra" (And he called.) (Third book of the Bible). Rabbi Book's sermon will be: "Call Direct — It's Cheaper."

ON March 15, the Evening with the Rabbi (Rabbi Ira Book) will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. George Bilick, at 89 Ridgefield, Daly City at 8 p.m. Rabbi Book will conduct a discussion on "The Festivals: Rites of Passage" (upcoming Pasover will be stressed). NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

I wanted something special to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and thanks to my friend Eleanor Seagrave, I have just the right recipe to share with you good cooks. Her Irish bread is famous and after making and baking it, I can see why, it's certainly delicious.

As you can see from the list of ingredients, this recipe makes four 9-inch pans of bread. However, Eleanor assures me that it freezes beautifully, so you can bake a treat for now and for the future. Or it would be a simple matter to make half the recipe. If you choose to make the full recipe, as I did, be sure to use a very large mixing bowl.

ENEANOR'S IRISH BREAD

3 cups raisins . . . soak in boiling water for 15 min . . . rinse and drain.
8 cups flour
1 cup sugar
8 teaspoons baking powder
4 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons soda
1 and 1/3 cups butter
4 rounded teaspoons caraway seeds
4 large eggs
1 quart buttermilk

Pour boiling water over the three cups raisins, soak for 15 minutes, rinse and drain.

Sift together the eight cups flour, one cup sugar, eight teaspoons baking powder, four teaspoons salt and two teaspoons soda.

Cut in the one and one-third cup butter.

Stir in the four rounded teaspoons caraway seeds and the three cups drained raisins.

Beat the four eggs lightly and add the one quart buttermilk. Stir eggs and buttermilk into the dry mixture, blending until flour is moistened.

Divide into four 9-inch cake pans which have been greased and floured. (I used two round and two square).

Bake in 400-degree oven for 40 minutes. Test with toothpick.

Cool on racks.

"Happy baking," says Eleanor.

There were errors in last week's recipe for dumplings; here is the corrected recipe.

FLUFFY DUMPLINGS

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1 Tablespoon cooking oil
¼ cup milk

Sift the one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt into a medium bowl. In small bowl combine the egg, one tablespoon cooking oil and one-fourth cup milk. Pour all at once into flour mixture. Stir only until moistened. Drop by rounded spoonfuls atop meat gravy. Cover and cook 12 to 15 minutes. Makes eight dumplings.

Dr. Nolan Looks at Faith Healing

By MICHELLE CARTER
Post Staff Writer

Dr. Nolen writes again — but don't expect any more comfortable homilies about the life and times of the small-town Minnesota surgeon.

This time the good doctor who sometimes writes (as opposed to a writer who sometimes operates, he maintains) has sunk his teeth into a sensitive and topical issue — faith healing.

And he's come up a winner.

Reporting seems to come as comfortably to William Nolen as removing appendices and reducing compound fractures. His conversational writing style which he perfected in his earlier books, "The Making of a Surgeon" and "A Surgeon's World," serves him well in "Healing: A Doctor in Search of a Miracle." (Random House, $8.95).

In "Healing," Dr. Nolen leads his readers into encounters with faith healers Kathryn Kuhlman and Norbu Chen and the psychic surgeons of the Philippines in an effort to discover if there actually were other avenues to renewed health besides those he learned in medical school.

He admits to the usual doctor's prejudices:

"I sincerely believed that we (doctors) did have a monopoly on the knowledge it took to heal people . . . I also believed that if we doctors didn't know how to cure someone, we could at least be certain that no one else did," he writes in the book.

But then the discovery that acupuncture was a viable form of medical treatment changed his mind about the closed club of medical practitioners. "I didn't let the 'discovery' of acupuncture turn me into a gullible person, but I did resolve that I would no longer have a closed mind."

Dr. William A. Nolen

So when he set out to uncover the truth about faith healers and the psychic surgeons, "I was as objective as I could be. You can't dissociate yourself from your background, but I was determined not to prejudge them," he said in a recent interview.

The book traces the steps he took on his investigation: A participating role in a Kathryn Kuhlman "miracle" service, a visit to Norbu Chen's "church" in Houston and an on-the-spot observation of psychic surgery in the Philippines.

Through each investigation, patterns began to develop, and Dr. Nolen began to reach the conclusions that are the foundation of the book. Namely that he was able to document not one single case "of direct intervention of an organic disease."

The illnesses that respond to suggestion, Dr. Nolen said, are the ones which are "cured" — the bad backs, the hearing problems, asthma, migraines.

"But you never see a bald man grow hair or a withered limb become normal. These are things that you could actually see, but they never happen.

"I could make out a list of patients who would never be helped by going to Kathryn Kuhlman — the organic diseases such as cancer, spinal column injuries or amputations. These are things she can never cure, but healers can't put limitations on things they can do. They never make promises, and she never claims that she's doing the healing. How can she say 'Here are the things the Holy Spirit can't do'."

Dr. Nolen followed up on a number of the patients who appeared on stage and claimed their "cures" at the Kuhlman service, and the results of that research supported his conclusions.

The psychic surgeons of the Philippines presented a different problem. People who claimed "cures" described "operations" in which psychic surgeons inserted their hands into the patients' bodies and removed cancerous organs and tumors and gall stones spilling only a trickle of blood and leaving no scars. Many of them had films of these "operations," and their "healing" was of special interest to Dr. Nolen.

He traveled to the Philippines with the father of a child who supposedly had been cured of a brain tumor by one of the surgeons (and who later died of that tumor), and what he found was chicanery, sleight of hand and sloppy magicianship.

"My one advantage was that I was a surgeon and I knew what an organ or a tumor looked like, People who go to them are ready to believe so they (the surgeons) don't have to be very good. Surgery is so mysterious to lay people and the sight of blood so shocking that people dispense with their critical faculties."

Dr. Nolen notes that the psychic surgeons are effective with the same kinds of illnesses that the faith healers succeed with. "Anything helps people that they believe helps them. If symptoms are relieved (and they can be, by suggestion), they believe they are cured."

They, too, never make promises and claim to receive their powers from a supernatural spirit so if a patient isn't cured, he believes it's his fault, not the surgeon's, Dr. Nolen said.

In an attempt to explain how some "cures" are actually just the work of the body healing itself, Dr. Nolen cited some statistics:

"Of every 10 patients, seven will probably get better whether or not they see a doctor. The other 30 per cent, that's what medicine is all about. Of that 30 per cent, I may cure 70 per cent depending on the disease.

"If 100 patients with skin cancer go to Norbu Chen or Kathryn Kuhlman, zero per cent will be cured. If 100 patients with skin cancer go to a doctor, 99 will be cured."

Dr. Nolen carefully avoids discussing motives in the book because "it's impossible to tell. I'll give them the benefit of the doubt."

But he goes on record charging irresponsibility to those sensational newspapers and magazines that build up the faith healers and psychic surgeons.

"Imagine the frustration of the father of a child with a brain tumor who has no money and hears about a man in the Philippines that could cure his child for $3,000."

He admits that in many cases the healers cause little harm beyond raising false hopes, but in the book he cites an example of a patient of his who put off cancer surgery until she could try a psychic surgeon. By the time she came back to him, it was too late to save her.

Despite his efforts, Dr. Nolen is realistic about the number of minds he will change.

"If it's someone's last hope, and he has the money, he's probably going to give it a try."

Topping the Barrymores

Once John and Lionel Barrymore and their sister got together for a movie, but last week the Wells family of Daly City topped the Barrymores by placing four members of their family in a play.

With Jim Wells as El Gallo, the narrator; his brother Ron as Matt, the boy; their sister Brenda as Luisa, the girl; and still another sister, Sandra, as Morty — the woman who dies, the Wells family presented "The Fantasticks" as a production of the Daly City Music Theatre. To support them and to make it a better show Jeff Wilbur appeared, as the mute; Michael Pullizzano, as Hucklebee; Scott Molver, as Bellamy, and Paula Ercoli as Henrietta.

"The Fantasticks" exhibited many of the talents of a remarkable Daly City family. They sing, act, dance, direct, draw and design. At first glance it seemed that Brenda, who is a married woman, was miscast as a 16-year-old girl. But soon it became apparent that she could bounce around the stage with all the vitality of a 16-year-old. old. Blessed with the widest smile in town and the biggest eyes, in "The Fantasticks" she became the sweetheart of the audience.

As El Gallo, the narrator, Jim Wells handled the heaviest part in the play with a skill that marked this as his best performance since he appeared as the bandit in Oliver, a few summers ago.

As the boy, Ron did not have a part that evidenced his many talents, yet his portrayal was commendable. It was good to learn that he has become a full-time employe of the Daly City Recreation Department. There he will influence many of Daly City's residents — young and old.

For "The Fantasticks," the cast were directed by Michele Raymond. Rosalie Bravo was responsible for the choreography and Colleen Shannon for the costumes — Bruce Hoard was at the piano, John Hettel and Glenn Rhian played the brass and percussion accompaniment.

During the week when "The Fantasticks" was being presented, another dramatic group within Daly City was making news. Speaking of the Fun Encounter Theatre, Congressman Leo Ryan stated that the group had received a grant of $13,500 from the National Endowment for the Arts. Purpose of the grant, Congressman Ryan said, is to continue and expand topical dramatic performance — workshops which tour various communities. Kenneth Michaels of Daly City is the head of the Fun Encounter group.

The National Endowment for the Arts is a federal program that has its purpose the preservation and enrichment of the nation's cultural resources and the provision for wider experience in all the arts. It has three basic goals: to encourage broad dissemination of highest quality arts across the country; to assist our major cultural institutions to improve standards and to provide greater public service and to give support that encourages creativity among our most gifted artists and advances the quality of the life of our nation.

Surely it is good to learn that a group in Daly City has been selected to assist in the fulfillment of these goals.

COUPON COLLECTING

Merchants Offer Free Tickets to 'Dirt Days'

Santa Clara County Fairgrounds, noted for motorcycle racing in northern California, has been selected as the site for "Dirt Days."

On the weekend of March 22-23 the happenings begin with the return and continuous showing of Bruce Brown's award-winning film "On Any Sunday," which takes a lighthearted yet inspiring look at the fascinating world of motorcycle competition.

Yamaha Dirt Days activities are patterned after this epic, allowing the family an opportunity to experience every type of off-road motorcycle riding imaginable.

From viewing to riding is all part of the fun-packed weekend. Yamaha provides everything free, from motorcycles and helmets to qualified instructors who teach riding skills to everyone who has ever dreamed of challenging the sport of motorcycling.

Tanforan Park Shopping Center merchants, in cooperation with Yamaha International are offering free tickets to the event. Tickets are available through March 21.

A special attraction during the weekend includes the first Bay Area high school motocross championship pitting the top riders from area high schools in a test of strength and agility on a rugged dirt course complete with savage jumps and tight twisting curves. High school riders who wish to enter the championship are invited to sign up at any area Yamaha dealership.

To accommodate the younger racing enthusiasts, bicycle motocross competition will be held during the two days for children of all ages.

For those who prefer a tamer form of off-road riding, a special enduro course has been constructed with scenic trails and exciting water hazards to whet the appetite of the cross-country motorcycle rider.

Dirt Days is further rounded out by the observed trials section and the appearance of the Yamaha CAT-a motorcycle with lion-like traction capable of traversing the most difficult terrain. Each rider can monitor his own achievements as he experiences the authentic sensation of competing in a trials event.

Also included in the weekend festivities will be special areas designed to instruct beginning motocross riders, as well as a Learn To Ride area for those who have never ridden a motorcycle and have been waiting for a safe and well-supervised training environment.

In addition to actual motorcycle riding, display booths are available for information on maintenance, safety and many more topics relating to the sport of motorcycling.

Almost.

Maybe young lovers can live on moonbeams and marigolds.

But when they marry and become Young Homemakers they find they need more—things like furniture, appliances, floor coverings, linens, draperies, and, if all goes well...infantswear.

Because they need so many things, and need them right away, Young Homemakers are an important market for most retailers. According to a nationwide study by the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, the typical Young Homemaker moves about three times during the first five years of marriage. Some of these moves are from city to city and some are within the same area, but each move is usually into larger quarters and that means buying additional furnishings.

The Young Homemakers are careful shoppers, relying on the daily newspaper as a shopping tool. 66% of those interviewed had read a daily newspaper the day before. Nine out of 10 of those who used advertising as a purchase guide said the advertising in the newspaper is the "most helpful" kind—more helpful than commercials on TV or radio.

If you're a Young Homemaker with lots to buy to make a house a home, shop the pages of this newspaper before you shop the fine stores who advertise with us.

And if you're a retailer who wants to know more about reaching and informing today's Young Homemakers, call us for more details from the very interesting Bureau study.

Patsy Hilliard New Trustee

SSFUSD Budget Cuts Are 'Restored'

South San Francisco Unified School District trustees Thursday rescinded $887,452 worth of previously voted cuts in the 1975-76 budget.

Voters approved a tax increase, estimated at 50 cents per $100 valuation, a narrow 4,283-4,002 vote March 4. Trustees had pledged to apply only 35 cents to the 1975-76 budget, bringing in about $875,000. The tax rate was cut 51 cents by state law provision this year.

The cuts had included the after-school sports, the drama and band, all busing, special education aides, the elementary music, and other programs. More than 500 parents, teachers, administrators and citizens conducted a well-organized campaign for a "yes" vote.

Thursday's meeting had been scheduled to consider action should the tax increase vote have failed.

Sitting in on the meeting, but unable to vote, was newly elected trustee Patsy Hilliard. Elected Tuesday by a 3,257 vote, she takes office officially on April 1.

Presiding was the top vote getter, incumbent John "Matt" Dillon, who received 4,524 votes.

The trustees set June 23 as the starting date for summer school to be held at Skyline, Monte Verde, Spruce and Buri Buri.

They will have six-week sessions, ending Aug. 1 and running 8:30 a.m. to 12:50 p.m. Southwood Junior High and South San Francisco High School will offer two four-week sessions, ending Aug. 14. Their hours will be 8:05 a.m. to 12:25 p.m.

Elementary specialist Judy Rogers and third grade teacher Donna Flanagan were appointed summer principals.

The trustees were to hold an informational meeting yesterday at El Rancho School, so local residents can talk to trustees.

Three PTAs, El Rancho, Serravista and Buri Buri are co-sponsors.

The trustees also will meet Thursday and will respond to a teacher request for a cost-of-living increase this year, plus a 4½ per cent catch-up boost for last year when they did not receive a full cost-of-living increase.

Fund Hike Approved

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors voted an additional $4,800 March 4 for appraisal services in connection with the county's acquisition of property for the proposed 1,244-acre regional park on San Bruno Mountain.

County Manager M.D. Tarshes noted that the original appraisal contract with Jack Kidder was for $13,550, with an additional authorization of up to $2,250 for consultation required after the appraisal is submitted to the county.

However, Tarshes said, more time was required than was anticipated, increasing the total fee to $18,300.

"This is not too surprising given the complexity of appraising for this particular acquisition," the county manager reported.

Board Chairman James V. Fitzgerald protested, asking, "Why didn't we get this in the first place? We should have had the total picture on the first review."

However, the board concurred with Tarshes' recommendation and gave its approval to the increase.

Westmoor Dedicates New Pool

THE NEW POOL

Local city and Jefferson Union High School District dignitaries and many Daly City residents participated Sunday in the formal dedication of Westmoor High School's new indoor swimming pool. Almost two years of planning and construction culminated with the afternoon dedication, which included a concert, a formal presentation of the pool made by District Trustee Jane Powell, a benediction, refreshments and entertainment.

IT'S REAL ENOUGH

Crestmoor High Students Helping the Community

School-Community Service at Crestmoor High has entered its fifth year, with John DeFelice at the helm.

DeFelice, starting his fifth year at Falconville, stepped in from the social studies department replacing new County Supervisor John Ward, who founded the program.

"I've watched the attitudes of the students and community change greatly over the years and I feel this program offers the kind of experience young people need. Community Service is not going to remain as is but hopefully will include more opportunities to broaden the experiences of volunteers," DeFelice said.

"Although 95 per cent of our volunteers are already active in assignments, we are always ready to serve community groups or individuals that have requests for student aides," he said.

The bulletin board in the Career Center will contain unfilled requests that are forwarded to his office, DeFelice said. Our staff will endeavor to fill positions giving priority to experiences that will help young people gain self-confidence and social awareness," he said.

Lori Sanders, Karen Peterson, Richard Rolfes and Martin Bonfert are student advisors, to consult and advise us concerning new assignments and help recruit new volunteers.

There are transportation limitations during the school day, but after school aides work as far north as Daly City and as far south as San Mateo.

Past Community Service assignments included hospitals, the Humane Society, summer camps, programs for the handicapped, city government agencies and various schools.

DeFelice said if he can broaden its scope, the program could include any volunteer time period or agency that might qualify "as giving service to people."

Some college programs decorate buildings, work in music instruction, run nature study centers and even organize sports teams.

"Crestmoor will have to seek its own level of commitment, but the future horizons may be most promising," DeFelice said.

"Quickie" Vacation Via Nevada Tours

Even though there's snow on the ground, there's spring in the air, and a perfect way to enjoy the season is by letting Nevada Tours arrange a "quickie" vacation for you in South Lake Tahoe or Reno. Would you believe that a one-night stay is only 95 cents per person (double occupancy in a deluxe motel)? That's right, you pay $10.95 and receive a $10 bonus value ($6 cash, $1 food credit, $3 cocktails). The refund is $13 for a two-night stay . . . Free parking is just another well thought-out accommodation at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant, located on San Mateo's busy El Camino Real. There are parking areas on either side of this luncheon and dinner mecca, which is open from 11 a.m. Monday through Saturday, from noon on Sunday. Visit Vince's Delicatessen and Fish Depot next door for fresh seafood to prepare at home . . . Phil Lehr has a distinguished wine list to accompany the gourmet steak dishes featured in the Wellington Room of the Steakery, in downtown San Francisco. Phil suggests the Weibel Chenin-Blanc as the perfect wine to enjoy with his famous Beef Wellington.

Sweepstakes Promotion At Tanforan Park

"Pot o' Gold" is the latest contest for customers of the Tanforan Park Garden Restaurant complex in San Bruno. Numerous prizes are offered, with three separate drawings slated for the next six weeks. Prizes for each drawing will be changed. Wednesday, March 12, is the first drawing. There is nothing to purchase, reports General Manager Jack Kuks. Entree blanks are available throughout the Garden Restaurant complex . . . Martinelli's Steak Pit in Millbrae is back on the circuit as a "must" stop for music fans. Dave Dodd is entertaining a host of old friends nightly, Wednesdays through Saturdays, in the lounge with his varied repertoire of popular standards and Top 40 tunes . . . You still have two more days to redeem the 50 cents off coupon (found in today's "Bright Lights"), which may be used at any of the Nine Garden Restaurants located in the Tanforan Park complex. There's 50 cents off on any purchase over $1 when you present the coupon after 4 p.m. This offer expires Saturday (March 15) . . . Besides the handsome Chinese decor and excellent cuisine at Superior Palace in San Francisco, you'll find first-class banquet facilities as well as a catering service.

Finocchio's Carroll Wallace, 25th Year

Carroll Wallace, the masterful master of ceremonies at Finocchio's, is celebrating his twenty-fifth year in show business. Carroll does an extraordinary number of song parodies and banters back and forth with the audience . . . Stop by Frank and Fannie Torres beach restaurant in Montara (located just south of Devil's Slide on Coast Highway One) and treat yourself to their Peruvian specialties. Wide windows around the spacious dining room focus your interest on the view of the Pacific Ocean. You couldn't ask for more romantic dining . . . Many of the show biz celebrities staying at the Canterbury Hotel in San Francisco can usually be found enjoying luncheon or dinner at Lehr's Greenhouse Garden restaurant, next door. Among the notables spotted feasted amidst the flowers and trees recently were flamenco dance star Jose Greco, singer Esther Phillips and natural food enthusiast Euell Gibbons . . .

The Gusts Offer Three Restaurants

Nick Gust and his son Charles have more restaurant hats than an old-time vaudeville comic. Whether your menu preference is seafood, fowl, or red meat, you'll find just what you're looking for at one of their three Rockaway Beach restaurants — Captain Charles, The Moonraker, and Nick's. As for entertainment, Jimmy Payer provides music for dancing and listening Wednesday through Sunday, at Nick's, with Mary Ann Hay sitting in on vocals. Among the many showbusiness greats to dine here in recent weeks was Vivian Duncan, who is a long-time acquaintance of Mary Ann. It was a happy reunion for the veteran performers . . . Khadija, the curvy bellydancer who has become quite an attraction during the Monday and Friday luncheon hours at Rodeway Inn, South San Francisco, is also an instructor in the classic Middle Eastern dance art. She also performs during the Friday evening "Happy Hours" in the Golden Rooster Lounge . . . Barbecued meats are a menu mainstay at the various Hick'ry Houses operated by Adrian Stickney on the Peninsula. Stickney maintains that the secret to his barbecued specialties is contained in the special sauce.

Scotty Campbell's "Happier Hour" Clicks

Many reports are coming in on Scotty Campbell's new "Happier Hour" program, which is now swinging in high gear. In case you missed Mary Lou's schedule, here it is again (write it down): From 10 p.m. till closing, Monday through Thursday, drinks (except premium and liqueurs) are 75 cents. Also Friday and Saturday evenings from 10:30 p.m. and Sundays from 9:30 p.m. It's a hit with the "steadies" and has attracted many new faces to this Redwood City restaurant . . . When you order a pizza (to eat in or take out) at Romano's Italian restaurant, Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, Enrico Romano's chefs see that your pizza choice is smothered with your favorite ingredients. Italian specialties of the house are numerous. A big favorite is Scampi (sauteed prawns) served with spaghetti, green salad, French bread and butter. You'll also find nightly specialties that demand gourmet attention . . . Hot Diggity, an international gourmet soup pantry located in San Bruno's Bayhill Shopping Center, features sandwiches (and what a variety!) with a European flavor in a garden setting. And if you like hot cider, you've come to the right place.

Legislators See Cambodia Woes

By JOHN HORGAN

Should the United States continue to support the government and military forces of Lon Nol in Cambodia?

This question has become increasingly critical in the last several weeks as the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh endures a siege by Communist Khmer Rouge insurgents.

The city is reportedly close to collapse. Its nearly two million inhabitants are said to be facing a prospect of starvation and death if aid is not provided for them, at least until the beginning of the rainy season in early June.

The four men who represent San Mateo County and California in the House of Representatives and the Senate have different views on the course our own government ought to take.

At one end of the spectrum, Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Menlo Park, says we ought to encourage the surrender of the Lon Nol government and try to safeguard those in his administration.

It is McCloskey's belief that we ought to provide the people of Cambodia with enough aid to get it through the rainy season.

Says he, "Hopefully, there can be a transfer of power to the Khmer Rouge without a slaughter. I don't think we'll vote them a nickel next year. But you can imagine what would occur if the invaders broke through the perimeter around Phnom Penh. They have said they would kill everyone in the Lon Nol government. I've never adhered to the bloodbath theory in Vietnam, but this one is something new."

He adds that, "Essentially, Cambodia was neutral until we invaded it in 1970. We did so to get at the North Vietnamese. Through inertia, we continued to help them. It is absurd that we are even in there at all. The fighting has been incredibly vicious. No one is taking prisoners. We owe the Cambodians a great deal just out of conscience. We should at least try to help them keep the perimeter from being broken."

Rep. Leo Ryan, D-San Mateo, agrees, in part, with some of McCloskey's notions, but Ryan takes a wider stance on the whole question of foreign policy.

He says the decision to be made on aid for Cambodia will be a critical point in American history, a period during which a new foreign policy for the rest of this century will be formulated.

Says Ryan, "We have to take the time to look at the whole picture. I want to buy time to find out whether or not it's in our interest to spend more money there. Or anywhere else for that matter. I'm not going to submit to hysteria. I'm also not suggesting there is hope. But there are lives at stake. I don't want to run away from it."

Ryan has not taken a firm position on the business of President Ford's supplemental aid package, which totals $222 million. "Does the country still believe in protecting the freedoms of other nations?" he asks. "Do we make an effort to defend those countries?"

He notes further, though, that, "I'm not sure I disagree with getting out of there either. Maybe this is the time to get out. But that's the kind of decision that will have to be made. It will be a significant policy change."

California's two Democratic Senators, John Tunney and Alan Cranston, are both outspokenly against spending any more money in Cambodia.

Tunney has submitted a bill which would reject the President's request for further funds. Says he, "The whole exercise there has been futile. History proves it. More money won't change it. It's time we let the people of Southeast Asia determine their own future."

Cranston is against the President's aid proposal too. "We are prolonging the war by paying for it," he offers. "I don't see a victory there in the long run. We are paying for the bloodshed. We started all this in 1970 and the people there will go on dying as long as we continue to pay for it."

Cranston believes that we have an obligation to the Cambodians but, he says, we ought to "fly out people instead of flying in more ammunition" to prevent that threatened mass killing if the Khmer Rouge break through into the city and overthrow Lon Nol.

"More people are being killed now," he points out.

According to Cranston's statistics, about one million Cambodians have been killed since the American involvement of 1970. He says half the populace are currently refugees.

He says the American military involvement in all of Southeast Asia will end up costing the U.S. citizenry close to $1 trillion.

In the last five years, the U.S. has spent almost $2 billion to support the Lon Nol government. An expenditure of $275 million has been exhausted by the regime this year.

Green Hills PTA Honors

February 20 was Honorary Service Award night at Green Hills School with Frances Husid and Ellen Brown receiving the honor.

Beverly Buhs, past PTA president and a previous PTA Honorary Service Award recipient, presented Mrs. Husid, 1973-74 Green Hills PTA president, with her award after describing her as a "willing worker for school and civic affairs . . . who pleads another's interest . . . and is not afraid of speaking up for a just cause . . . a generous person who cares about all children and their well being."

Just a few of Mrs. Husid's pet projects have included leading fund raisers for Millbrae Nursery School and Green Hills, open space and active support of issues and candidates of her choice.

She is active as leader of Brownie Troop 765 in Millbrae, Girl Scout liaison, co-chairman of Parent Education and representative of Green Hills on Millbrae Council of PTA's.

Janet Martin, primary teacher at Award.

Hills, said she was honored to present her friend, Mrs. Brown, a retired Green Hills teacher and past PTA president of Parkside Elementary School in San Francisco, with the PTA's highest honor, the Continuing Service Ward.

This award is only given to recipients of the Honorary Service Award who have distinguished themselves in outstanding service to youth.

Mrs. Brown was active as a Brownie Scout leader and Cub Scout den mother when her son and daughter were growing up. She also served the Council of Job's Daughters five years. She and her husband are enjoying retirement, but Mrs. Brown remains active in the American Association of University Women's San Mateo chapter.

Mrs. Brown taught at Green Hills School 24 years.

The highlight of the evening came when she accepted a scroll signed by some of her former students and their parents.

A short film taken of the Green Hills Rams football team in action during the recent football championship, in which Green Hills was victorious, was shown.

Eunice Butera announced the 1975-76 Green Hills PTA officers have been nominated by the PTA board. Additional nominations were requested and an oral vote was taken and approved by the PTA assembly.

The 1975-76 nominations include, for president, Sherry Neswick; vice president, Lorraine Garvin; honorary vice president, A. Lynde; secretary, Charlene Fietta; treasurer, Margaret Dale; recording secretary, Sylvia Earp; parliamentarian, Barbara Bristow; historian, Sonia Walsh; auditor, Eunice Butera.

Other highlights of the evening included the participation of two S.F. Giants, Gary Matthews and Gary Maddox. A question and answer period followed a talk by Matthews. The Giants were presented courtesy of Peters Truck Line.

The meeting was closed with the song, "This Land Is Your Land," led by John Bristow, accompanied by Patricia Diaz on piano, Bob Bush, Sandra Feeney and Ken Murphy on guitars.

Guilty Plea In Slaying

Louis Reynolds Wednesday pleaded guilty to accessory to murder, as the district attorney's office dropped two counts of murder against him.

A jury 10 days ago said it was hopelessly deadlocked at 6-6 over the question of whether the 34-year-old Reynolds killed Junias Joe Miller and Barbara Ann Lacy last May 28 in Pacifica.

Trial testimony revealed that a second suspect in the slayings remains unapprehended.

Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo set sentencing for March 19.

Prosecutor John E. O'Leary said at the trial that Reynolds, an Oakland resident, was working as a federal narcotics undercover agent investigating Miller on allegations that he was a major drug salesman.

Joseph Gruber, attorney for Reynolds, told jurors that his client had left the Miller apartment before the time a woman witness said she saw two men, including Reynolds.

Reynolds did not testify.

Jurors deliberated for 2½ days before Judge William Lanam declared a mistrial.

Richard Leakey

Exploring the Birth of Man

Richard Leakey, one of the world's leading authorities on the history of early man, will discuss his African discoveries at 8 p.m. March 13 at the Skyline College gym in San Bruno.

Leakey's subject will be "Where Did It All Begin?" The 30-year-old paleontologist found fragments of a human-like skull and lower leg bones in the Lake Rudolph region in Kenya, Africa, in 1972, which have placed man's beginnings a half-million years earlier than thought previously.

His discovery would date the earliest man 2½ million years ago. Leakey's father, Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, had found the next-earliest remains 13 years ago in the Olduvai Gorge in Tanzania and which have been named "homo habilis."

The Skyline speaker, who is director of the National Museums of Kenya, also will narrate film on early man in East Africa.

Tickets are available at the Skyline College box office. Further information may be obtained by calling the college community services office.

Cable TV Firm Warned by Pacifica Council

Pacifica city councilmen warned TeleCommunications Inc. officials Wednesday night that revival of the prize-winning Studio 70 in a new form was a non-negotiable matter.

Studio 70 had provided local origination programming which was broadcast over cable television Channel 8 until its manager, Grady Hesters, and his assistant, Maggie Ramirez, were fired without warning about a month ago.

City and company representatives are scheduled to go into negotiations on a new cable television franchise March 19.

At Wednesday night's public hearing, Hesters presented a plan under which a non-profit corporation would take over local programming from TCI. Elements of the plan include:

• Studio 70 would be re-opened at the old location, 1810 Francisco Blvd. or at another site ("I have several in mind") during an interim six-month arrangement.

• TCI would provide the same equipment used at Studio 70.

• TCI would provide $15,000 in operating funds, a sum equal to its former contribution.

• St. Andrew's Episcopal Church would be set up as trustee of the operation, in cooperation with TCI.

• Hesters and Mrs. Ramirez would be hired, through the church, to operate the studio.

Councilmen said they and the company would consider the proposal at the March 19 meeting. At that time, Councilman Stan Farber and council member Janice Fulford, TCI general manager J. C. Sparkman and Pacifica TCI manager Spence Wood, and various city staff members, will meet to consider new points to be incorporated in the franchise.

For a full hour the council listened to complaints from the public on the TCI operation, then another hour on complaints regarding the closing of Studio 70. However, except for one man who urged that the franchise be revoked, the mood appeared more conciliatory than at similar meetings held over the past year.

Complaints voiced by a packed audience included:

• Subscribers are billed two months in advance.

• Complaints about bills and service go unanswered.

• Too many complaints result simply in service being cut off.

• Servicemen and office help are "curt, rude and unhelpful."

• It is difficult and often impossible to contact the company by phone.

• Picture reception is poor and programs often go off the air before they are concluded.

Among items to be discussed on March 19 are:

• A provision to reduce rates when service quality drops.

• Consideration of increasing subscription fees a dollar or more from its present $4.50.

• Meeting standards in signals.

• A commitment to rebuild the system to meet 1977 FCC standards, by that year.

• Improved billing procedures.

• A provision allowing a subscriber to settle his differences without having the cable disconnected.

Sanity Test for Russell

Kenneth F. Russell, the San Bruno man charged with slaying his boyhood friend Jan. 23, just 10 days after his release from a state hospital for the criminally insane, will be examined to determine if he was sane at the time of the killing.

Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo March 4 appointed two psychiatrists to examine Russell, following Russell's pleas of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity to a charge of murder.

Judge Piombo instructed psychiatrists John Peschau of Agnews State Hospital and Carmon Cray of Palo Alto to make reports to him April 8 at 9 a.m.

He instructed them also to determine if Russell is mentally competent to stand trial, and if he understands the charge of murder against him.

LSSD To Dismiss Teachers

Laguna Salada school trustees last week authorized School Supt. James Brien to notify 14 teachers that they won't be rehired next year.

Brien told the trustees that enrollment is expected to decline by 359 students, to 7,227, for the 1975-76 school year.

Although Laguna Salada has the largest classes in the county, and now has enough vacant classrooms to cut the class-size an average of three students, its finances will not allow it to do so. The district has no junior high schools.

Two of the 14 teachers being notified started work in September; the others were hired during the year, many because of a smaller than expected enrollment decline.

Brien said further personnel cuts would be made through attrition.

In addition, teachers in six special programs — including reading, speech, educationally handicapped and music, are being notified that they are being rehired as teachers, but not necessarily for their specialties.

Loss of enrollment will cost the district an estimated $296,000. However, with the inflation factor in SB 90 the amount that may be spent per student will be raised 6 per cent — highest in the county — from $825 to $888. This is still the lowest in San Mateo County, slightly more than half that of Hillsborough, Woodside and Millbrae.

Trustees received the preliminary budget, showing an increase of $345,354, to $8,301,414. The budget will be fully analyzed during the next few weeks, Brien said.

We're Recommending A Book?

Recommending books isn't one of the obligations of this column, nor necessarily one of our pleasures. At the price of books nowadays, we hesitate to impose our sometimes kinky tastes upon an unsuspecting public rapidly getting short on leisure dollars. Plus the fact that we generally consider book critics to be tiresome.

Nor, under usual circumstances, would we impose upon the public's intelligence by recommending a book we haven't read . . . but there's a first time for everything.

The reason we can recommend this book (which we intend to read soon) without fear of reader ire, is because it is about Moe Berg, one of the most fascinating figures in sports history.

Berg is one of those rare athletes who is fascinating not only because of what he did, but also because of what he was. Morris "Moe" Berg (BR, TR, 6-1, 185, born New York) was an intellectual and a catcher, a college graduate who played major league baseball (1923, 1926-39) in an era when even high school graduates, especially in pro baseball, were rare, and when catchers wore "tools of ignorance." And he wasn't JUST a college graduate. He was a graduate of Princeton, a magna cum laude in Romance languages who could speak in 16 tongues and who had a range of knowledge which qualified him for Information Please. He was also probably America's most important spy during World War II.

THE BOOK we are recommending, sight unseen, tells all about the above in detail. It is "Moe Berg: Athlete, Scholar, Spy," by Louis Kaufman, Barbara Fitzgerald and Tom Sewell; Little Brown; 265 pp. $7.95, plus tax.

Berg, by the way, was a genuine intellectual, not the phony kind who studies a few advanced physical education courses like kinesiology and then refuses to talk to mere mortals. He was a brilliant man who was quiet, a loner, an eccentric who wore only rumpled black suits and lounged in Japanese kimonos reading vast collections of foreign newspapers, but who was also liked and respected by his colleagues.

Until recent years he was known only as a light hitting catcher (.243 lifetime BA, six career homers in 662 games) who was good defensively, excellent at handling young pitchers (even if they weren't high school grads), and an intellectual. That's mainly his reputation centers — as an intellectual who, amazingly, also played 15 years in the biggies. A rare entry, in the minds of baseball people.

But somewhere along the way he became a government agent and an atomic bomb spy which, it is said, led to cliff hanging adventures. He must have done well, because after the war he received a Medal of Merit, the highest civilian award given by the United States government.

Oh yes, we omitted the most important piece of information concerning Berg's baseball career; the factor which made his intellectuality even more unique than it thus far appears. For, you see, Berg played not only with Cleveland and Washington and the Red Sox, but he signed into the major leagues, right out of Princeton, magna cum laude and all, with the Brooklyn Dodgers!

WHEN WE HEARD THE RUMORS that the Cubs were ready to give up shortstop Don Kessinger for Dave Kingman, we were a little indignant, feeling that they should at least throw in a pitcher. Kessinger, though an all-star shortstop, is also going to be 33 at mid-season, we reasoned, and will be in his twelfth year in the majors, and shortstops usually don't last much longer than that. And with that wind and short left field porch at Wrigley Field, Kingman would. . . . And then the Giants were supposed to be negotiating for Met shortstop Bud Harrelson. He's a local boy, played at S.F. State, is a fine shortstop, but he'll be 31 in mid-season, in his eleventh year in the big time, and already is injury prone. A pitcher would have to be thrown in for sure. Afterall, we thought, Kingman is only 26, runs well, and has perhaps the most potentially potent homerun bat in baseball. He could be a big drawing card in New York, too. And God knows, the Mets need power desperately.

So then the Giants got just cash for him. We believe the story line of the Giants' front office, however, was that nobody was willing to give up for Kingman a ballplayer better than what the Giants already have. We believe it because that has been the story line for a couple of years, now. It must be true. Who would, afterall, give up front line players for a .225 lifetime hitter with no position, who strikes out every third time up and who has never proven that he can play regularly for a full season? And besides, Horace Stoneham needs the loot. Nor can one ever forget the intangible worth in getting rid of a dissatisfied player. It can sometimes do wonders for team morale.

Don't blame the Giants, either, for not accepting a Kingman for Jerry Koosman trade offer two years ago, as announced by the Mets' front office. That would have been a good trade this year, because Koosman was coming off a good season, Kingman off a bad one. But two years ago, Kingman had just hit 29 homers (his major league high), driven in 83 runs (his high) in just 135 games, while Koosman had just come out of his worst season (11-12 in just 163 innings, 4.14 ERA) under the cloud of reported arm trouble.

SUDDEN THOUGHTS:

College basketball could be a more interesting game than the pro version if only they'd put in a 30-second clock to cut off those terribly boring stalls. That is the only aspect of the college game we don't like. We enjoy the imperfection of the players (most of them anyway), and their desire and enthusiasm, and we like the fact that they can use zone defenses (although a lot of the pro clubs use them, thinly disguised).

One of the arguments against the 30-second clock atthe collegiate level is that the stall is the only way teams with weak personnel can hold the margins down to respectability — or have even a remote chance of an upset — against the powerhouses. Obviously, the talent is much more evenly spread in pro ranks. Our only answer to that is obvious. Athletic directors should make up more realistic schedules if they wish to avoid humiliation. But most of them find that the bigger gates drawn by the powerhouses are marvelous ointments for humiliation.

IF OUTDOOR soccer is ever to become really big in all parts of America, somebody is going to have to figure out how to get the scores as high and as wild as those that are produced by indoor soccer

All-County First Team Includes Westmoor

Caselli Earns Post Cage MVP

THE POST'S SPORTS

Versatile Serra High athlete John Caselli has earned his second Post All-County honor in as many sports this school year.

The 6-3 senior, who was named to the All-County football squad as a wide receiver last fall, has been chosen Most Valuable Player on the 1975 All-County basketball team.

The basketball squad was picked by a ballot of Post prep writers. Selections were made on the basis of players' all-round contribution for the entire season.

Caselli led a Serra team, which hadn't been highly-rated before the season, to a second-place West Catholic Athletic League finish. Serra was the only team to beat St. Ignatius, the No. 1-ranked team in the Central Coast Section this year.

The other players on the first team are 6-3 Westmoor senior Maurice Pittman, 6-3 Woodside senior Myrt Easley, 6-0 San Mateo senior Mark Jackson and 5-10 Hillsdale senior Mike Stockwell.

Pittman and Easley were All-County second team last year, and Caselli was on the third team.

Making the second team this year were San Mateo's Sylvester Pritchett, Serra's Mike O'Regan, Serramonte's Marvin Worthy, Jefferson's Jose Guamon and Menlo's Davis Slajchert.

Pittman shared MVP honors in the North Peninsula League last year with El Camino's Steve Kennedy. This year Pittman kept the award all to himself.

The 6-3 senior center had been a three-year starter. The last two years he led Westmoor to unbeaten NPL regular season.

Easley, another dominant center, started slowly last year but ended by leading Woodside to a South Peninsula Athletic League championship.

This year the start wasn't so slow. He led the Wildcats to another title, and earned league MVP honors.

San Mateo's Jackson sparked many fourth-quarter rallies from his guard position for the MPL co-champions.

Stockwell, the only one of the five who wasn't a starter last year, ran a smooth Hillsdale offense from the backcourt as the Knights ran off a 10-game MPL win streak and earned a co-championship.

Pritchett, the MVP and scoring champion in the MPL, was San Mateo's standout in postseason play against Hillsdale and St. Ignatius, dominating the Bearcats' efforts at both ends of the court.

O'Regan drew praise from first-year Serra coach Pat McGlennon for versatile play in the CCS' toughest league.

Slajchert, just a junior, led the CCS in scoring with a 29 point-per-game average. Menlo plays in a very weak league. But the Acorns proved their worth in the practice season with wins over Mitty and Hillsdale.

FIRST TEAM

John Caselli, Serra, 6-3 senior; Maurice Pittman, Westmoor, 6-3 senior; Myrt Easley, Woodside, 6-4 senior; Mark Jackson, San Mateo, 6-0 senior; Mike Stockwell, Hillsdale, 5-10 senior.

SECOND TEAM

Sylvester Pritchett, San Mateo; Mike O'Regan, Serra; Marvin Worthy, Serramonte; Jose Guamon, Jefferson; Davis Slajchert, Menlo.

State Tournament Next

Skyline Edges Stars

By JOHN MURPHY
Post Correspondent

Skyline College's basketball team added still another accomplishment to an already impressive season by edging the visiting Coast Conference All-Star team 86-83 Friday night.

Unfortunately, the Trojans will have to await the results of a special Desert Conference playoff game which was to be played yesterday between College of the Desert and Barstow before they know who their opposition will be in the opening round of the State tournament in Fresno on Friday.

College of the Desert had clinched the championship, but third place finisher Imperial Valley forfeited four games because of an ineligible player, including its win over Barstow. Thus, a tie has resulted in the conference.

"I had scouted College of the Desert and we've been preparing for them for several days. If Barstow wins it will not give us much time to get ready," said Skyline coach Lyle Newcomer.

The Trojans played lethargically in the first half against the All-Stars and trailed 50-38 after the first 20 minutes of action. Menlo coach Bud Presley platooned his All-Stars and kept a fresh combination in the game.

However, an excellent second half paced by Coast Conference Co-Most Valuable Player Nick Pappageorge and little-used reserve guard Keith Larsen keyed the victory.

After Pappageorge led SC to a 65-64 lead with ten minutes left, Larsen came in and personally accounted for Skyline's next ten points, dishing off two assists and hitting three straight shots from the field as the Trojans took a seven-point lead.

Skyline controlled the game the rest of the way, although the All Stars threatened slightly at the end.

"Larsen's play didn't surprise me. He's the type of player that doesn't play much in the games but consistently plays hard in practice", Newcomer said.

First Conference Loss for Bulldogs

College of San Mateo's baseball team dropped a 3-0 decision to host Chabot Thursday in Hayward.

CSM pitcher Terry Hendley performed well against Chabot, one of the GGC's top teams. He struck out seven and walked four. Hendley also had two of CSM's three hits.

The Bulldogs' lone threat came with one out in the fourth. Joe Berriatua was hit by a pitch, Stu Bringhurst singled, and the two worked a double steal. However, two ensuing strikeouts left them stranded.

SC Runners Boast 21 Dual Meet Wins

The cry is individualism these days. Be different, don't conform, be yourself.

And no doubt about it, Skyline College's track and field team boasts 33 individuals, each with his own soul, his own identity.

Yet these young men are not islands. They pull together as one.

"I've seen a lot of teams that have "espirit de corps," said Coach Bob Luolhati. "We have it . . . especially so. Our kids are really great that way. Everybody knows everybody else, what they're doing, and how they're doing.

"At some four-year schools, you don't see a teammate until the day of a meet, but we make a big thing of togetherness here. For a team that has 33 men, it's a pretty closely knit team."

Apparently the comradarie — plus athletic skill — is paying off for Skyline has won 21 straight dual meets, and Saturday the Trojans captured the Coast Conference Relays on their windswept San Bruno field by a wide margin.

"One thing about all these kids is their willingness to work," said Lualhati, in his fifth year as head track coach. "They train every day — regardless of the weather. Rain or shine. And they're seeing the fruits of their labor."

With hurdler Ike Allmond figuring in three first places, Skyline completely dominated the track events to win with 137 points. Challenger Hartnell finished second with 113 and Menlo placed fourth with 58 points in the seven-team field.

Of the 10 events contested on the all-weather Trojan track, Skyline finished first in seven and second in three. But the Trojans lost 10 points when their victorious 880 relay team was disqualified for running out of the lane, negating a great anchor leg on which Bob Fontana made-up nearly five-yards on Hartnell to edge ahead at the tape.

Fontana did anchor the Trojan 440 relay to victory over the Panthers, taking the baton from Allmond. Just five minutes earlier, Allmond had run a 14.1 anchor i the shuttle hurdle relay to make-up nearly ten yards on Hartnell anchor Billy Dew. But officials judged that race a dead-heat.

Allmond came on later, starting on even terms with Dew in the open 120 highs, and improved his state season leaderhsip from 14.6 to 14.4 with an easy victory. Dew was second in 15.5.

Menlo's Andy Madolora took the open 100 in 10.1 over Fontana, who finished second in 10.5.

Skyline won the two-mile relay by over half a minute with an 8:00.8 meet record clocking for a quartet of John Moreno (2:01.6), Bob Powell (2:01.5), Tony Fotinos (1:58.6; and Brian Pierce (1:59.0).

Fontana also ran on the meet record (3:40.3) sprint medley relay team, anchored by Rich Hornstra. Ron Hornstra joined brother Rich plus Fotinos and Ray Watts for another easy win the concluding mile relay (3:29.5).

Skyline's only field event victory came in the long jump, led by somersaulter Mike Gilmore's 22-9 leap (for a 62-0 three-man total). But the Trojans took seconds in three other field events to keep up with Hartnell's field power.

Individually for the Trojans, Greg Bodmer was the overall leader in the javelin at 158-10 and Gerrit Schram in the shot at 43-2¾. Charlie Ford, a 5-8 frosh from Jefferson, had the second best high jump, 6-3.

Menlo won the high jump relay with a team of Rob Jones (6-3), Vic Titus (5-8) and Ron Grasty (5-3).

Bulldogs' Swim Team Wins, Then Loses

College of San Mateo's swim team opened Golden Gate Conference competition Friday on a mixed note.

In a double dual meet at West Valley, the Bulldogs downed Laney 70-41, but lost to West Valley 74-37.

Serra grad Brad Bini was again a standout for CSM. He was a member of both Bulldog winning relay teams and captured the 200 fly in a good time of 2:12.6.

His time in the 200 fly is just 1.6 seconds away from qualifying him for the State JC meet.

CSM, "making good progress" according to coach Dave Gray, will meet Foothill and De Anza next Friday in another double dual.

Summer Camp for Little Leaguers Begins July 6

With the Little League season nearing, Western Regional headquarters in San Bernardino has announced its third annual summer camp program.

Open to boys 10 to 12 years old, whether or not affiliated with a Little League team, the summer camp provides a variety of recreation, with the emphasis on baseball fundamentals.

Camp games are played on the Western Regional championship field where, in August, Little League state champions from the 13 Western states will meet to determine the Western Regional representative in the World Series.

In addition to a well-rounded baseball program, boys attending the camp participate in swimming, basketball, volleyball, table tennis and other recreational activities.

Camp sessions are supervised by experienced instructors and counselors selected for their ability to work with and understand boys of Little League age.

Campers live in air-conditioned dormitory units adjacent to the Little League Stadium and enjoy nourishing meals prepared by school cafeteria-trained personnel.

Two-week camp sessions are scheduled starting July 6 and July 20. Day campers are accepted.

Boys of parents interested can obtain information and applications by writing to: Little League Summer Camp, 6707 Little League Drive, San Bernardino, CA 92407.

Pacifica May Snuff All Fireworks

As debate concluded Monday night on so-called Safe and Sane fireworks, it appeared Pacifica might become the first city in San Mateo County to ban all fireworks.

Two councilmen, Mayor Stan Farber and Aubrey Lumley, favored the ban.

Two others, Sid Lorvan and Janice Fulford, appeared ready to vote for the ban with receipt of more evidence.

The proposed ordinance was introduced two weeks ago. It is due for a final vote in two weeks, without additional debate. If approved, the ban would be effective July 5.

Lumley said the city spends time and money policing the fireworks stands, which he said are homely and are traffic hazards. Allowing fireworks could make the city liable for damages, and the fireworks represent a fire hazard, Lumley said.

The audience seemed divided on the question.

Bud Wheeler, 1348 Hermosa Ave., spoke in behalf of the Boy Scouts and the Falcon football team. He said a large portion of the youth groups' income comes from fireworks.

He said parental responsibility is required to see that children did not abuse the use of fireworks. Forcing the youth groups to go to other means of fund raising, he said, would "put kids into the street, going house to house, as beggers."

He said a lot of fires are set by Christmas trees and television sets. Bicycles, he added, are as dangerous as anything else. Should a ban be imposed, there would be just as many fireworks purchased, but out of town, Wheeler concluded.

Diane Johnson of Alicante Drive spoke of the sales taxes now collected on locally-sold fireworks, and of the impossibility of stopping the sale of explosive fireworks, already illegal under state law.

Leo Crawford of Red Devil Fireworks, said most cases of injury from fireworks are from the illegal explosive kind. The council was told that the five states with the worst injury records have complete bans, while the two best records are by states which have "safe and sane" fireworks, Washington and California.

"Fireworks at Fourth of July are an American tradition," Crawford said, "a way of life."

Robert M. Berry Jr. of San Jose Avenue said youth groups can hold garage sales and car washes instead of selling fireworks.

"We should set a leadership role," he said. "Our action in banning all fireworks may encourage other cities to follow."

Farber suggested waiting 30 days for full documentation from the fire and police departments, but the other councilmen want to vote at the next meeting.

"The city council should have the guts and intestinal fortitude to stand up for what is right," Lumley said.

Federal Funds Slated For Parks in Bruno

Park developments account for the lion's share of Federal Revenue Sharing funds the San Bruno City Council Monday night approved for expenditure through June 30, 1975.

City Manager Gerald Minford outlined specific projects, slated through Jan. 31, 1977, for which a total of $806,848 in revenue sharing funds has been earmarked.

Minford said much of this capital improvement program is an update and a revision of projects previously studied by the council.

"Some are in progress," he said.

Some projects in the capital improvements program also will be funded totally or partially by other sources, such as the city's capital improvement funds, state highway funds, the state open space bond fund and the recently initiated federal community development fund.

The monies from these sources brings the city's capital improvements program funding, through Jan. 31, 1977, to $1,336,474.

For the period, Jan. 1 to June 30, 1975, funding for work on park projects is slated as follows:

Grundy Park, $3,481 in revenue sharing funds and $9,026 in the city's capital improvement funds; Belle Air Park lighting, $42,000 in revenue sharing funds and other Belle Air Park improvements, a18,920; Monte Verde Park landscaping, $5,000 in revenue sharing funds; Forest Lane Park, $25,000 in revenue sharing and $10,000 in state highway funds; Hermosa Park, $31,000 in revenue sharing and $19,000 in state highway funds; Portal Highlands Park, $30,000 in revenue sharing funds; and Crestmoor Nature Park, $10,000 in revenue sharing funds.

The council made a special motion to place the Crestmoor Nature Park funding in the 1975 list of projects. Minford said funding was needed to complete the projejlct by May. The work is being done jointly with the San Bruno Park School District.

Funding for the project originally was to come from the city's next year share of state bond fund money, which Minford said would still be available for another project.

Other projects slated for Jan. 1 to June 30 federal revenue sharing funding include: swimming pool renovation, $25,000; Library book circulation improvements, $5,489; Library building modification, $23,338; Library air conditioning, $12,000; renovation of city treasurer's office at city hall into joint council-mayor office-conference room, $2,500; additions to the fire station, $15,000, and police station, $32,000; San Bruno Avenue, Cherry Avenue to Traeger Avenue sewer project, $21,400; and San Bruno Avenue, San Mateo Avenue, Seventh Avenue storm drain project, $3,000.

The money for the police station addition also was moved up from an original July 1 to June 30, 1976 earmarked time schedule. Both the police and fire station projects are listed as phase one projects.

"Fire station costs will be higher than anticipated," said Minford.

For the period of July 1 to June 30, 1976, Minford's schedule of capital improvement expenditures include a three-year accumulation of federal housing and community development funds totaling $350,000 for a community center. The city and the school district have been negotiating the sale of Northbrae School by the district to the city for use as a community center.

Minford said the negotiations may necessitate a rearrangement of his outlined funding on this particular project.

Other July 1 to June 30, 1976 revenue sharing, fundings include: phase two of the fire station addition, $85,000; Crystal Springs sewer project from Donner Avenue to El Camino Real, $22,000; San Bruno Avenue storm drain project from San Mateo Avenue to Seventh Street, $58,000; anjld Sharp Park Road's sewer project from Elston Drive to Susan Drive.

July 1 to June 30 projects using state bond funding include; Grundy Park, $10,000; Rollingwood Park, $10,000; Fifth Addition acquisition, $50,000; Concord Way tot-lot, $10,600; Southern Pacific right-of-way purchase along San Antonio, $25,000; and Crestmoor Canyon Park, $26,000.

The major funding earmarked for the period from July 1, 1976 to Jan. 31, 1977, a from revenue sharing funds, is $152,000 for phase one development of a new park corporation yard. Also set aside for that period is $13,000 for phase two of the police station addition and $10,000 for a main city park storm drain.

Minford said no decision has been made as to a location for the new corporation yard, "but it certainly won't be where it is now," he said.

Commenting on the entire schedule, Minford said "we have more projects than staff and crews to accomplish them."

Bruno Mayor Race Upcoming

The annual realignment and scramble for the mayoralty in San Bruno won't be until March 24.

San Bruno's next mayor undoubtedly will be Councilman John Barnard. He's presently vice mayor and San Bruno has been following an unwritten agreement that the vice mayor is heir apparent to the mayor's chair.

However, there might be a fight brewing over who will be the vice mayor.

Councilman Dick Griffith normally would be the logical choice for that seat, based on the fact Tony Governale is presently mayor and Councilwoman Margaret Kozkowski has been mayor.

But Griffith's chances to become vice mayor, and subsequently the mayor, may well have been shattered Monday night when he alienated the one person who could put him in the vice mayor's chair.

That person is Barnard, a long-time friend, supporter and associate of Griffith. But Monday night he was irate at a publicized letter Griffith wrote in which Griffith referred to his fellow council members as "suede shoe artists."

Barnard took it as impugning his integrity, and although Griffith apologized, the remark may have put Griffith out of the vice mayoralty running.

In addition, Mrs. Kozkowski Monday night promised "to make a fight" over the council realignment. And it's not likely that Governale will support Griffith. Governale also was angered at Griffith using the press to air his beliefs instead of making a face-to-face charge or comment during a council meeting or taking the matter up during an executive session.

As it now stacks up, Griffith probably can count on a vote from new Councilman Gary Mondfrans, who will be installed at a special 7:30 p.m. session Tuesday.

Adding his own and Mondfrans' vote, Griffith probably will be in a 2-2 deadlock, with Mrs. Kozkowski and Governale, leaving Barnard the tie-breaker.

Governale Monday night attempted to call a 6:30 p.m. personnel session prior to the March 24 meeting to iron out the issue

Salvation Army Has Fund Need

South San Francisco's Salvation Army service unit has a new reason for a fund appeal. Its members don't like to be threatened by the needy.

Last week, according to unit chairman Barbara Hitchcock, an applicant for aid at the Information and Referral Center was alleged to have threatened director Larry Smith with a butcher knife because Smith was unable to respond to his plea for help.

"He was hungry," Mrs. Hitchcock said. "We should never turn away anyone hungry."

After the incident, she, Smith and Robert Bennett of the Red Cross held a conference on how to help the poor when the agencies are short of funds. Mrs. Hitchcock said it was decided that a plea for additional food and funds from the public be made. The Salvation Army's local unit spent its fourth quarter allotment during last year's holiday season, feeding over 1,000 persons.

"But people are still hungry in March," Mrs. Hitchcock declared.

The local unit has not received its first quarterly allotment from its parent Salvation Army office in San Francisco, and Mrs. Hitchcock is not sure why.

Voices Have Been Raised

Autopsy: Read the Contract

By JOHN CURRY

A generation has become accustomed to thinking of an autopsy as a formality performed as a preliminary to their favorite television crime-buster going into action. But the medical facts of a real post-mortem examination can come as a shock to the family of a deceased person.

A shock, perhaps, because the grieving family generally is unaware that an autopsy, unless specifically limited, allows a pathologist to remove virtually every organ, whether relevant to the cause of death or not.

It also may be just as well that most families don't know that the body in the open casket at the funeral service may have had considerable cosmetic work done on it to make it presentable after an autopsy.

But while the autopsy has become standard procedure in some medical institutions, a few voices have been raised in this county to ask, "Are this many autopsies necessary?"

Funeral directors discussing the matter said they would like to remain anonymous, and one particularly distraught San Mateo family asked that it not be identified.

Most of the local funeral directors contacted said they thought there were too many autopsies being performed. But they, along with the San Mateo County Medical Society and the chief pathologist at Stanford Medical Center, agreed on one thing: Despite their immediate grief at the loss of a loved one, members of the family should read and understand the terms of an autopsy consent form when presented by the attending physician and be prepared to make a decision.

"You can learn an awful lot from an autopsy," said Gene Taylor, county medical society executive director.

Autopsies generally have to be performed within a few hours after death for any findings of tissue damage to be valid or for transplant organs to be usable.

This is why a short, simple form, said to be standard in most hospitals, is offered the next of kin as soon as possible after death of a patient. Sometimes the form is produced along with the news of the death, one mortician said.

One form, called an "authority for autopsy" and obtained at Mills Hospital in San Mateo, is one paragraph long. It authorizes the hospital "to permit its pathologist (a physician trained in post-mortem examination upon the body of (blank), deceased, to take tissues for special study and microscopic examination for the purpose of determining the cause of death, and to remove any structure or organ from the remains for therapeutic or scientific uses."

Signed by two persons with some relationship to the deceased and by two witnesses, this authorization in effect allows the institution to do what it will with the body.

Therein lines the anguish for some survivors. The daughter of an elderly woman who died of heart disease at a local medical center said she was asked two minutes after the death to sign the form. "We didn't read the authorization but we signed it," she admitted.

That was a mistake, the local undertakers agreed.

She was under the impression "All they were to do was look into her heart," the woman said, but added she was told later the pathologist had taken "the eyes, ears, skin and some other things I don't know about."

"I've been on nerve pills over this for nearly the last year," she said. "It's a shock. They tell you the body doesn't belong to you after the person is dead. But had I known what would happen, I never would have signed that form."

Another problem, the woman said, arose when her mother's body was shipped to her native country overseas and relatives who hadn't seen her in years were equally horrified at the body's condition.

Who does most of the autopsies? The morticians point out the teaching institutions, mainly Stanford Medical School in Palo Alto and the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco and the various Veterans Administration hospitals as those doing autopsies on all, or most, of their dead as standard procedure.

Human body parts, naturally, are in demand for teaching purposes, and there is an increasing trend to perform organ transplants though such things were unknown 20 years ago.

And, of course, there's the matter of finding a specific cause of death.

"I find it hard to believe a physician would do something he's not authorized to do," Taylor commented. He added that the possibility of "pre-authorizations" has been discussed at medical meetings. A notation on a driver's license for instance, might indicate the deceased had authorized certain of his organs to be used for transplants, Taylor said.

As for the pathologist himself, he does only what the directions coming down with the body indicate, according to a statement from Dr. Hun Kim, this month's chief pathologist in Stanford Medical Center's rotating system.

The Stanford pathologists usually remove all organs unless specifically limited and will put back organs if so directed, with the skin closed and sutured, Dr. Kim stated.

Yet one funeral director reported that badly cut-up bodies arrive "in streaks" perhaps once a year. "Then we'll go to the chief pathologist (at several places) and talk it over and the situation straightens out for awhile."

He added, "Most families wouldn't do it (authorize an autopsy) if they know what could happen. If they find out, they do get upset. The physicians don't tell them."

Most people probably think of an autopsy as an investigation into the cause of death resulting from a violent crime or sudden fatal illness, such as a heart attack.

One director noted, "Ninety-nine per cent of families don't realize what an autopsy is. If more people did there would be fewer of them."

"Some doctors will tell a sob story," one undertaker remarked. "They ask 'Will you help us to help others,' but they don't say they may want so many organs and other things."

"Lots of autopsy surgeons don't have much consideration for the embalmer and leave a mess that's hard to clean up," one embalmer said.

But the local undertakers give the local acute hospitals — Mills, Sequoia, Peninsula and Chope among them — pretty high marks for not making their own work any harder, because they don't do so many autopsies.

Without the medical training and transplant needs there isn't the "push" for body parts at the local hospitals, the undertakers say.

Those best known for their post-mortem work are, of course, the county coroners, who in many cases are required by law to autopsy bodies.

Homicides, suicides, rapes and similar types of deaths resulting from criminal acts must be "posted," as well as unexplained deaths in which the deceased hasn't been seen by a physician for at least 20 days or "where cause of death can't be determined in any other way," according to San Mateo County Coroner Paul B. Jensen.

His office handled 1,040 autopsies in 1974, about 83 per cent of the cases referred to it, Jensn went on. Most occurred when there was no physician in attendance. Many of them were "commute cases" in which a man would leave a healthy wife behind when he went to work in the morning to find her dead on the floor when he returned that night.

His office doesn't normally give away organs, Jensen said, although some eyes are donated to Stanford Medical Center if that hospital's transplant team can get them within six hours.

Jensen added that he has refused organs to Dr. Norman Shumway, the famed Stanford heart transplant specialist. "We can't give organs out because we need them to determine cause of death. Eyes don't normally affect the death cause," Jensen said.

Dr. John Howser, the Santa Clara County coroner, noted that he didn't think there were any illegal autopsies done, as has been hinted by upset families.

An autopsy can take several hours, and in time and materials cost $200 to $900. They are done only when considered necessary for the institution's purposes, he noted.

His staff autopsies about 80 per cent of its cases, although some county coroner's offices will do 100 per cent, Dr. Howser said. The Los Angeles County Coroner's office does 40 to 50 per cent autopsies. "The big factor is money. They don't have the people to do more," he said.

Dr. Howser said teaching hospitals will push for more autopsies, although pathology isn't a part of the regular student curriculum.

But interns do get a "salesman's manual" on "how to get that autopsy," the coroner said. The manual teaches how to approach the family and establish rapport to get autopsy authorization, he said.

No New Exemptions Necessary

There will be no need for homeowners who received a $1,750 property exemption this year to apply for continuance of the exemption, San Mateo County Assessor Jack Estes reports.

A new state law provides that once a homeowner has filed a claim for exemption he is not required to file annually as long as he continues to qualify, Estes said.

However, if there is a change in the status of the property and the owner is no longer eligible for the exemption, his office must be notified, the assessor stated.

Estes said that cards are being mailed this week to 100,000 San Mateo County property owners who qualified for exemptions in 1974. (Duplicate cards in Spanish are included.)

If the homeowner is still qualified and all information on the card is correct, it need not be returned, Estes said. If any changes have been made in the status of the property or ownership, the card should be filled in and returned to his office by April 15, the assessor stated.

Inquiries concerning exemptions can be made to the Exemption Section, Assessor's Office, at the County Government Center in Redwood City.
